Many people from town and the valley are seen in our neighborhood looking for and gathering cherries and berries. The majority never ask permission of the owners and pick fruit to sell. This we call trespassing and many are being sent from the patch on this account. Of course if we saw a nice patch of fruit in the owner's yard in town, we couldn't and wouldn't think of helping ourselves and think the same rule would hold good out here.

Ruby Kronquest had a narrow escape Tuesday evening when she, DeEtte Kronquest and Lena Collins were driving down thru a canyon. DeEtte was thrown first, then Lena and Ruby decided to stay. At the foot she regained one line and this turned the horses, the buggy upsetting and running over her head, cutting it in numerous places and bruising her body. We think the girls had better procure a new chauffeur when out berrying.
